The longer the strike on the New York Central continues the more trouble and suffering come to hundreds of poor men. Should the strike assume greater dunensions the inconvenience to the public and the hardships of the laborers will be still

It is useless to say that the workingmen have brought this on themselves and are in working order and be ready to make a consequently barred from all sympathy. They brought it on themselves by adopting what they believed to be the only course which could preserve a primary right of laboring men-the right to organize. Who will say that the workman has no claim to the manly independence of an American citizen?

But the whole trouble could be laid even now if Mr. WEBB would swallow his pride and consent to arbitration. Might is a bad means of solution for a theoretical point. Opponents are crushed, but the justice of a principle is not vindicated or established by it.

Mr. WEBB could really lose nothing in the eyes of any sound-thinking man by consenting to the sweet reasonableness of arbitration, even at this stage of the strike. No one disputes the truth of his assertion that the New York Central has a right to discharge unworthy employees. But arbitration alone can determine to the satisfaction of the public that only unworthy employees were discharged.

Why not consent in a manly, generous way to this reasonable course? Let arbi tration settle the question.

Friends of the Sick Infants Have He Had Declared in Fata for Colors and Had Given Up All Hopes of Being Cured, When He Went at Los to Drs. McCoy and Wildman, and Now He's Happy.

"It troubled me very much, "said Mr. Mondon
"and for two years and a half I went to ese decter but ne didn't so me any good. It cost me a good deal of money for the doctor and for medicines, an I kept getting worse. I had heavy mealsches an a constant dropping back in my threat of more that kept me hawking and subling. I was kep awake a good deal at night and it had no appetus My nose was stopped up completely and full of be impost insens. They are "" come."
